Day 18

ROUND THE WORLD TRIP ON TRACK

Weighed down by bulging carpet bags, yet in high spirits, Phileas J. Fogg, Esq and his manservant were today seen disembarking The Mongolia onto the dock at Calcutta. The steam powered vessel moved at incredible pace, shaving two days from its standard journey time from Suez.

The captain and crew were seen on shore celebrating in a nearby tavern exclaiming what a generous fellow Fogg was. It seems the traveller is using his wealth to expedite his passage!
Throughout the travellers have gained some celebrity recanting their exploits to interested parties. One of whom, a police officer named Fix, seemed most intrigued in Fogg's jaunt.

21st October 1872

Day 19

END OF THE LINE FOR FOGG?

Fogg's journey has been derailed following news that the construction rail line between Calcutta and Bombay is in fact not yet complete. Near the small hamlet of Kholby the passengers were forced to find separate means of onward travel.

Again Phileas has been seen reaching deeply into his carpet bag, this time exchanging bank notes for an elephant
- a steep bargain at £2,000,

Day 21

FIREFIGHTER RESCUES PRINCESS

The journey Phileas J. Fogg, Esq. became more heated yesterday as he was involved in a confrontation involving Hindu monks and a Parsi princess! In a conflict of cultures, our group of foreign travellers in these lands took it onto themselves to disrupt the ancient tradition of sati. For those less learned readers sati is the act of sacrifice made by a widow on top of her departed husband's funeral pyre. Whilst Fogg formulated the plan, he left the hard work to his travelling companion, Passepartout. In an incredible act the ex-fire fighter bravery snuck into the monks hut under the cover of darkness and rescued the woman in the nick of time.

11th November 1872

Day 40

PARTY IN DISARRAY

To remain on track Fogg has today departed for Singapore without his manservant. The authorities have been alerted to Passepartout's unexpected disappearance. Following a brief search of the city - the scheduled vessel, the Carnatic left without them. Phileas, now in the continued company of the Parsi princess Aouda as well as the detective Fix travellers have travelled to Shanghai aboard the speedy pilot boat the Tankadere. Braving a most violent storm the vessel, fearing the worst, fired a SOS cannon. To his good fortune none other than the Carnatic! The 80 day challenge remains a possibility at this halfway stage.

DETECTIVE THE CAUSE OF DELAY

With great fortune Fogg and his travelling partner Passepartout have been reunited in Yokohama, Japan. It has come to light that the detective Fix, believing Phileas J. Fogg, Esq. to be the criminal in question of the recent Bank of England robbery, drugged his loyal manservant in order to postpone departure from Hong Kong. Fix however had not counted upon the relentless endeavour of Fogg to continue his journey and the ingenuity of Passepartout to fend for himself. using his skills as an ex-gymnast to fleetingly join a travelling circus. With the air cleared and intentions revealed, the party have made peace with Fix. The detective pledges to return Fogg to English soil [granted only for further investigation and arrest].

3rd December 1872
Day 62

PHILEAS IN AMERICAN TUSSELE

Shortly after arrival in San Francisco, Phileas J. Fogg, Esq. and company became embroiled in a disturbance between two crowded groups. This ironically, was a surprisingly violent rally for the city's new Justice of the Peace. Battered, bruised and with clothes torn our travellers were left cursing the name of a Colonel Stamp Proctor - an instigator who had swung a fist for Fogg himself!

Following a trip to the tailors for replacement suits, the trip was back on track and the group embarked on the Great Trunk train line to New York.

2nd December 1872

BEASTS, BRIDGES & BATTLES DELAY JOURNEY!

Fogg has been hit by a triple threat of delays in this stretch of his journey to New York.

In eastern Nevada, a great herd of buffalo crossing the track led to a delay of three hours.

Winding through the Rocky Mountains the locomotive was halted at Medicine Bow Creek when warning was given of a shaky suspension bridge. The daring train engineer increased speed and completed the crossing successfully but caused the bridge to collapse in the process. Delayed for 2 hours.

Finally, but most dramatically, the train was attacked by native Sioux as it pulled towards Fort Kearney station. Whilst it is known that the train was stopped and the force pushed back the Frenchman's wearabouts in now unknown. Fogg has delayed the journey and a search has begun.

9th December 1872

PASSEPARTOUT RESCUED FROM NATIVES!

Fogg has returned triumphant with Passepartout alive and well following a brazen rescue made 10 miles south of Fort Kearney. Thanks to soldiers released by the Forts Captain the band were successful in their fight against the Sioux.

Now twenty hours behind schedule Phileas must regain eight hours to reach the transatlantic steamer to London.

With no train scheduled and snow closing in the team have moved to a bizarre sledge with sails powered only by wind which will transport them to Omaha.

20th December 1872
Day 79

DOES FOGG HAVE MONEY TO BURN?

Suffering continuous setbacks across North America, Fogg has arrived at New York too late for his scheduled crossing.

Determined not to lose the Eight Day challenge wager he purchased passage aboard the cargo ship Henrietta. Whilst the captain had intended Bordeaux as the destination, Fogg's has opened his wallet once more to instigate a mutiny and change the direction of travel!

Still behind time, and fighting low winds - it became the only option for Phileas to purchase the whole ship and to demand the crew chop wood from the vessel itself to fuel the engines!

It seems Fogg's plan changed yet again, see the Henrietta docking at Queenstown harbour, County Cork.

SIGNATURE COCKTAILS

Day 80?

FOGG ARRESTED!

Using his ingenuity to gain back time, travelling from Queenstown to Liverpool by express post train and steamer, Phileas J. Fogg, Esq. has today mere moments after stepping on English soil been arrested by Detective Fix. The detective believes Fogg to be the devious robber who stole £55,000 from the Bank of England. The around the world adventurer, just six hours from his destination of London, looks set to spend the rest of his life behind bars if proven guilty.

Day 80!

INNOCENT AND ON TIME - PHILEAS WINS WAGER AND HEARTS

This morning Fogg has been released following an incredibly embarrassing revelation for the police force. Detective Fix had wrongly misidentified Fogg as the robber! The true culprit in fact had been detained three days prior.

Once released Fogg sped to London. Ever the Englishman, he returned to the Reform Club just minutes late to graciously admit defeat.

Yet, despite Fogg's usually precise time keeping, one key aspect had slipped his mind. Incredibly, through circumnavigating the globe from West to East, he had crossed the date line and gained a day and thus achieved his goal!

Phileas J. Fogg, Esq. having been declared the winner thanked his humble manservant Passepartout. Yes, Fogg had spent the majority of his winnings to complete the adventure in time but he had made a great friend in the brave Frenchman and a dear sweetheart of the rescued Parsi Princess Aouda.

Truly, would you not for less than that make the tour around the world?
